THE POLE TAX ORDINANCE PASSES

The Measure Taxing Telegraph and Telephone Poles Goes Through Final Reading in Common Council and Now Awaits Mayor's Signature-Other Matters in Common in Maplewood cemetery.

Common council did not convene last night until ten minutes past nine, and the meeting just dragged along until away past 10 o'clock

The only measure of widespread interest that was acted on was the ordinance from select council, taxing the poles of the telephone and electric companies, which passed final reading. The measure now awaits the mayor's signature.

the report of committee, recommending the adoption of the resolution to sell the city stone crusher to P. H. It iggs for $125, was adopted.

The resolution directing the repairs to the council rooms, the city clerk and city solicitor's rooms, was favorone granting permission to the Klotz Silk company to erect and maintain a fire-alarm box at the mill for the company's own use only.

The following resolutions from select council were concurred in: The requisition for supplies from Columbia Hose company. That the mayor direct the Traction company to place its rails in the centre of the street on Belmont street, from Clark avenue to the city line.

The following ordinances passed first and second readings.
The ordinance, by Mr. Pugliano, providing for the erection of an arc light at the corner of Fallbrook street and Brown avenue. The ordinance by Mr. Whitfield, providing for the erection of an are light at No. 9 school, on Park street; an incandescent lamp at the intersection of Ninth avenue and Spring street; an incandescent lamp on Columbia avenue in front of the property of Mrs. Wheeler, was found to be without an appropriation. This made the measure invalid, and it was unthinkingly killed, the members apparently not heeding what was being discussed when they voted against it.

After a few minutes' endeavor to un tangle matters, in order to give Mr. Whitfield an opportunity to amend the ordinance so as to include an appropriation for the three lights, the ordinance was hid over for two weeks. The following resolutions were introduced and referred to committee. By Mr. Evans-That the city enter into a contract with the Black Diamond Coal company to protect the city from damages that may occur from the company's cuim being washed into the city's sewers; also with the Klots and the Empire Sitk companies for possible damages following from the discharge from the slik mills into the Mark F. Harte, a well known young man of this city, died, as stated in yesterday's Tribune, Saturday, at Schenectady, N. Y., where he went about a month ago intending to engage in business. He had lived in Schenectady for some time, but on the death of his wife returned to Carbondale. A month ago he heard of a good business opening in Schenectady and went there to reside, but soon ofter his arrival was taken ill. had been in a hospital for almost a month. Hemorrhages were the direct cause of his death. The body was brought to this city yesterday afternoon and was conveyed to his parents' home on Brooklyn street from where the funeral will be held this morning ably reported and adopted, also the at 9:15. A requiem mass will be held in St. Rose church and interment will he made in St. Rose cemetery

Mr. Hart was born here about 34 ears ago and was a young man highregarded by all who knew him. Most of his career was spent in Carbondale. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Harte; three sisters, Mrs. Patrick Conlon, Mrs. Andrew Gilmartin and Mrs. George Henry, of this city; and one brother, Thomas Harte, the Mayfield merchant. Two small children also mourn his loss.

THE MAYOR'S VETO.

Councils Did Not Heed His Message with Reference to the Lighting Contract and Did Not Meet in Joint Session.

Councils did not seem to heed the nessage of Mayor Kilpatrick which contained his veto of the cesolution awarding the three years' lighting contract to the Lackawanna Valley company, for there was no joint session last night to consider his veto. In vetoing a measure, the reavor, by the act of 1889, is directed to so inform councils and to call them in Since councils did not beed the mayor's message and elected to remain away, it would seem that his veta would be effective and that the contract has been set aside.

What, if any, action the councils vill take with reference to the lighting contract, none of the councilmen would indicate last night. There were nough of the councilmen in and about the city hall to have a meeting of both bodies, but there was a marked apathy shown.

STEAKS SERVED

A LA GLUCK

What a Simpson Man Did to Three Juicy Sirlions When He Found They Had Not Been Cooked on His Homecoming on Pay Day Night. The Story Ends in 'Squire Lynch's

There is a man in Simpson who has novel way of serving sirloin steak, particularly on a pay night, when things don't seem to be coming his

This man, one Steve Gluck, came home a few nights ago and proceeded to serve three sirloin steaks after a fashion that would make the face of a chef in a "hurry-up" restaurant crimson with embarrassment. It was pay night, this night, and when Gluck reached home he expected to see an inviting supper before him. He was disappointed. His wife had been busy with her household duties and the best she could do was to have the requisites of the evening meal ready be transformed into tempting Gluck, however, didn't want Like the man who comes into restaurant with a roomful before him and wants the walters to go through a sort of chain lightning move to serve him. Gluck wanted his steak and right away, quick. The steaks were before him, three of them, one on top of the other. The sight of them changed his disappointment to anger, and, wildly grabbing them, he started out to serve them a la Gluck.

Gluck, however, was too busy to dally, and he sailed through the house in search of another victim to initiate into his art of serving steaks while you look. Soon he came across Mrs. Wolf. As before, he didn't ask.

"How do you like your steak, rare, around, gave it to her full in the There was one steak left. This was intended for Mrs. Gluck, but she had discreetly fled and was nowhere to be found. Gluck still had the steak and somebody must have it, in order to complete his demonstration. After searching about and finding no one to serve, he concluded that the side of the house was as good a place as another to be treated to the remnant of his unserved supper, and he slammed the sirloin against the siding. Gluck, by this time, was well wound and to further relieve himself of his energy, he gathered up a number of parkemanship until he had broken a half dozen windows in his house. Thus far it was only fun for Gluck, but now he was going to mix his jokes with a bit of excitement. He procured the family oil can and, pouring some of the fluid about a part of the house, he sought a match to start a blaze, This was carrying a joke too Gluck's folks thought. They didn't strenously object to his steak party but they drew the line of such a

MEMBERSHIP GROWING.

The Carbondale Cycle Club Gains Accessions at Each Meeting-Band Concerts Proposed for the Summer

The new vitality with which the arbondale Cycle club was endowed this spring is beginning to manifest itself, and the organization is as big factor in the social life of Carbondale as the Scranton Bicycle club in the Electric City, which is saying a good deal.

The signs of the increased interest in the club are especially shown in continued accessions that are made to the club's membership. The activity of the members in the club's doings has been the means of attracting to the interesting phase of club life that the organization offers and there has not been a meeting since the recent election of officers at which there has not been four or five applications for membership to be acted upon. Tonight the club meets, and there are a half-dozen applications awaiting action. For this reason the members are urged to attend.

The lecture course, which was in stituted by President Kimball, the club's energetic and progressive chief officer, has been attended with splen did results, and it has probably been chief among the means to which the wider interest in the club can be redited. These lectures and other en tertainments will be continued throughout the summer and autumn. The band concerts, which were so pleasant and popular last summer will probably be repeated this year before the warm weather ends. The club is considering this proposition now, and it is likely that the public will participate in the benefits of the public spirit of the club before the

GAMDETTA'S AFFLICTION.

A Simpson Man Taken with Dangerous Attack of Appendicitis.

Andrew Gamdetta, of Simpson came into the office of Dr. A. F. lis on Sunday afternoon. He had a pain, a terrible pain, in his stomach, he said, and the look of agony on his face confirmed his words. The doctor examined Gamdetta, the examination disclosing a badly diseased vermiform appendix. He advised the patient to go immediately to Emergency hospital to be operated on. Gamdetta consented and in the evening he was operated on and what was left of his appendix was removed. The exploration of the opening showed that Gamdetta was in an extremely dangerous condition and that his visit to Gills' office was timely, as it is doubtful if he could have survived

Last night Gamdetta's condition was exceedingly favorable.
